EIM800 Individualized MEd Thesis4

The Individualized M.Ed. is a distance learning program for motivated independent learners who have a clear academic focus and professional goals. The program's personalized learning experiences are excellent preparation for doctoral study. It is not for students seeking licensure. You will be assigned to a faculty advisor with expertise in the subject area from which you intend to take most of your courses.

Area of Study

In consultation with your faculty advisor, you will select or create a unified area of study, choose courses, and create an academic plan.

Working with experienced Cambridge College faculty, you will receive expert academic guidance to realize your personal and professional goals and complete a master's degree. You will learn how to develop courses, support your studies with College and community resources, and document your learning.

Your courses may include:

- Online courses.
- Directed studies.
- 12 transfer credits relevant to your theme from other institutions; three of these credits may be taken after enrolling.

Admission requirements:

- Bachelor's degree and other general requirements (see Admission).
