The readers of Brazilian Magazine in Boston have named Cambridge College “Best College & Faculty” for 2010. Over 85% of the 1000 responders voted for the College. The award was presented by Marconi Almeida at the Cambridge College School of Management on Tuesday, December 7th, and accepted by Dr. Joe Lee, the current interim president of Cambridge College.

“Cambridge College has been a champion in inclusion, offering many courses that are important to the Brazilian students and future professionals, in addition to great locations and welcoming staff,” says Marcony Almeida, co-Editor and publisher of Brazilian Magazine.

Also attending the presentation were Dr. Joe Daisy, Executive Vice President, Dr. Niti Seth, Dean of the School of Psychology and Counseling, Dr. Alan Sheppard, Interim Dean of the School of Education, and Dr. Mary Ann Joseph, Acting Dean of the School of Management.

Cambridge College has a very strong relationship with the Brazilian community in Eastern Massachusetts, serving the community with graduate programs in Education, Counseling & Psychology, and Management, as well as a strong, multidisciplinary undergraduate program. According to Almeida the Interpreter Certificate programs are particularly popular. These programs include: Medical Interpreter; Human Services Interpreter; and Mental Health Interpreter.

Cambridge College’s Interpreter programs help allow students to meet the communication needs of patients/clients and providers by becoming fluent in the bilingual terminology of their field, developing cross-cultural communication and interpreting skills, and increasing their fluency in English.

Founded in 1971, Cambridge College is a responsive learning community, where working adults can find ways to make the personal and professional changes they need to achieve their goals. Cambridge College provides an atmosphere of true diversity, where students support each other in a collaborative learning process that respects their needs and values their prior learning and life experiences. The College’s innovative adult-centered learning model links theory and practice, helping students to acquire the academic credentials they seek, enrich their lives and careers, and become leaders in their communities.
