Cambridge College to Host Health Care Exploratorium

CAMBRIDGE— The health care industry is the largest employer in Massachusetts, and the demand for quality employees with advanced degrees and updated skills is at an all time high. Cambridge College is hosting a Health Care Exploratorium, a collaborative exchange of ideas concerning continuing education possibilities for human resource professionals, training directors, managers, and other health care administrators, on Friday, June 22nd from 9 a.m. to noon in Room 152 at 1000 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge.

The Exploratorium will focus on the needs of hospital training departments throughout Massachusetts. Its aim is to refine and evaluate the existing courses in the College's Health Care Management Program and discuss emerging needs that Cambridge College coursework and instruction may be able to fill. The session will allow attendees the chance to gather input so that more hospitals will be able to help their employees remain competitive in today's health care environment.

The Cambridge College Health Care Management Program delivers high quality instruction to health care employees across Massachusetts by offering a Master's degree directly at the hospital workplace. Over the last five years, the College has created partnerships with several area hospitals to provide this cutting edge training to their staff.
