Cambridge College Recognized for Diverse Education

CAMBRIDGE— Cambridge College achieves great success when it comes to educating minority students. In their recent issue, Diverse Issues in Higher Education published the national “Top 100 Graduate Degree Producers,” and of the thousands of American colleges and universities, Cambridge College was ranked as one of the top institutions conferring Master’s degrees to minority students in several categories.

“I am very proud of these significant accomplishments and the national recognition of the success of the College’s mission,” said Cambridge College President Mahesh C. Sharma. “It is clear that we are realizing our mission. It is my hope that we may continue to improve upon our current rankings and the number of degrees we confer at the Bachelor’s, Master’s, and Doctoral levels for students from all types of underserved populations.” Cambridge College offers Master’s degrees in Education, Psychology and Counseling, Management; a doctoral degree in Education; as well as undergraduate degrees.

Cambridge College’s rankings include:

Degree Category	Cambridge College National Ranking
Total Minority Master’s in all disciplines	24th
Master’s in all disciplines (African Americans)	10th
Master’s in all disciplines (Hispanics)	54th
Education: African American Master’s	4th
Education: Hispanic Master’s	25th
Psychology: African American Master’s	9th
Psychology: Hispanic Master’s	24th
